Both axillse were full of hard metastatic glands, both pleural cavities contained bloody fluid, there was a constant hacking cough, and the patient was in a condition of semi-collapse. Such was her condition on the 27th of December. On the morning of the 28th she felt much better, was able to take food and to breathe with comfort. Even more remarkable than this a change was noticed in the size and consistency of the growths. This change progressed until after the lapse of a few weeks the patient seemed to be perfectly well. Mackay candidly admits his inability to account forthese phenomena, simply calling them agencies in the spontaneous cure of a cancer. He suggests that the fluid which developed in the pleural cavities was in reality a serum manufactured by the body containing an anti-cancer virus of some sort, and he utters the hope that we may at some day be able to create such a serum artificially, thus placing ourselves in a position to induce spontaneous cure. Editorialcomment.--There seems to be a tendency to combat disease, or prevent disease, on the principle discovered by Jenner--i. e., the principle of inoculation with a modified virus or anti-serum. This mode has proven effective not only against small pox, but we see its value in the injection of anti-toxin in diphtheria. Perhaps we may yet use an anti-syphilitic serum, an anti-cancer serum, an an anti-rabies serum, etc. At all...
